If you don't know how to make your man realize you're on your period without getting offended and dumping you, this is the guide for you. First, you should find out what your man thinks about your period. There are three main opinions. One, men don't understand what a woman's period is. Two, men don't understand what a woman's period is. Three, men know what a woman's period is. All you have to do is find out which opinion your man has. If he's not sure what you said, then you got it right, and you can go on if he says you're wrong. How do you know if a guy has a girlfriend? Do you know what guys like about girls? Different guys' tastes are different and what they really like may not appeal to you. He might talk about how he likes long hair. If you grow it like that, he might be interested in it, but he might not go out with you because it's not that great. He likes short hair. If you give yourself a "page" haircut, he might be interested in you, but that's not what you want at all. Do you want him to want to be with you? Or do you want him to just be interested? If you want to be with him, then grow your hair out and you'll look amazing. He doesn't see you the way you see yourself. You look much more feminine in his eyes than you do in yours. He looks at you as if you are a beautiful princess, and in your eyes he sees himself. He looks at you like you're a queen, and you don't understand why that's so. What does he see in you? How do you understand it? Let's see ... The eyes are the mirror of the soul. The eyes are the closest thing that connects us to the person next to us, and they are a reflection of our state, feelings, inner world. We always look at them as if we were looking into the soul. How to understand what he sees in your eyes?

Here are some tips to help you answer this question. 1. Your gaze is more thoughtful Studies have shown that looking at an object and looking into space are different. Looking into space tends to be more thoughtful. When you look directly at people, they may feel less confident because they can't understand what you're thinking about them. As a result, they may become nervous. If you want people to feel more comfortable during an interview, just make eye contact 2. Direct eye contact confuses people
