the uploaded file may contain offensive language A: Use (\.zip)$/ to match only the files with a.zip extension. You could also change your negated character class to [^\.] if you don't want to match dot within other characters: [^\.][^\.]*$ Or: [^\s]*[^\s\.]*$ This will not match a file named: my_file.zip.txt. To avoid the file names to be matched, add the single line of code below: $re = "/^(?:[^\w]|\\.)*$"/; In both cases you could replace your second / with $ to define the end of the string match. You have to read the manual of your regex engine to get the right escape sequences for \ to be interpreted inside a character class. In their comprehensive 4-page opinion, the district judges said: “This case is a paradigm of one of the reasons why the Free Exercise Clause must protect religious liberty. It requires the government to be a ‘wall of separation’ between religion and government. This case involves all three branches of government: federal, state, and local. It involves the entire range of issues that fall within the government’s purview, and it potentially threatens all of the ways the government uses its powers to affect the daily lives of Americans.” More from Legal Insurrection This is a prime example of what happens when the rule of law is abandoned for political expediency. We are supposed to be a nation of laws, not the rule of law. “A — City of New York, et al. (“City”), Defendant,” the Opinion of the District Court, December 23, 2019, reads, in part: 37..... 39. This case, which involves the constitutionality of the City’s two-month ban on the sale of athletic shoes that are not properly identified as having been “made with or for” Nike—a ban that was later ruled unconstitutional, see In re Nike, Inc. Free Speech Footwear Patent Infringement, 396 F. Supp. 3d 984 (S.D.N.Y. 2019)—is a paradigm of one of the reasons why the Free Exercise Clause must protect religious liberty. It requires the government
