Let the band do the work for you! Our favorite music is dynamic, challenging, and can grow as our lives and our perceptions change. The same is true of our band: we're always trying to find and refine what makes us tick, and the stories and musicians that make it up. So we like to keep things just a bit odd. "Out of the Grey" is the second full-length of the band — a stunning work that showcases a creative freedom and boldness that's impossible to contain. The album is ten very different songs that will appeal to fans of The Mountain Goats, Violent Femmes, Walkmen, and whatever else you might throw into the mix. Who are you? Zenobia Walker: Zenobia and Marika, the conceptual twin-sister project of Taylor Nelson. We live on opposite coasts, and have been performing since 2006. Marika is a former barista who was forced into semi-professional drinking and ended up an obsessive hoarder; Zenobia's identity is currently in flux. We both sing, play guitar, and write in a number of different styles and genres. Where did the name come from? Zenobia Walker: Neither of us have any background in antiquity. Both of our parents were teachers, so we had an idea of the world of learning that was taken for granted in our childhoods. We wanted to try on ca3bfb1094

Once you're logged in to a site with multiple logged in accounts, your old account is kept around in your browser's session (Chrome, Firefox, IE) until you explicitly log out of it. However, if you hadn't logged out before logging in to your current account, your old account is cleared away and you only have access to the current account.
