The effects of bovine serum albumin (BSA) and aprotinin on platelet and plasma fibrinolytic activity were evaluated in the early post-transfusion period of a standard blood transfusion and in an allogenic blood transfusion. During the pre-incubation with BSA, pre-incubation with aprotinin, or pre-incubation without either reagent, the amount of endogenous fibrinolytic activity of platelets was the lowest at 30 min after the blood transfusion. In parallel, pre-incubation with BSA prolonged plasma fibrinolytic activity in the early post-transfusion period. In all transfusion groups, the stability of platelet fibrinolytic activity could not be improved by the addition of aprotinin; on the other hand, in the aprotinin-containing solution, fibrinolytic activity increased slightly, irrespective of pre-incubation with BSA. We conclude that aprotinin cannot be recommended for use to stabilize the fibrinolytic activity of platelets in the early post-transfusion period. BSA is however, effective in stabilizing the fibrinolytic activity of plasma.His remarks came in response to the expected designation of a chief diplomat, a senior administration official told Fox News. between Mahanoy City and Hazleton is one of the most confusingly designed piece of infrastructure in western Pennsylvania. The roadway winds the way it does for good reason. Drivers are responsible for navigating the work zones, which can begin in late fall, through dark, rugged and windy country. However, an ambitious group from the Philadelphia region is trying to change those work zones into safe, well-lit environments with a little more curb appeal and a few more bike lanes, among other changes to welcome road users. After years of planning and environmental and traffic studies, the Horsham-Mahanoy City Work Zone Corridor Improvement Project is about to make the roads between Horsham and Mahanoy City go from mildly to deadly. The project got the green light from the state Department of Transportation in July. Construction is set
