When using a Chinese-made internet-connected lock, connect it to a wifi router first before connecting it to your home device, as the two functions may use different IP addresses for communication. When purchasing an internet-connected lock from a Chinese website, take into consideration that a 3rd party may have access to your data and lock. The better your internet connection and your device's operating system, the better the security. How often should you change your password? Locksmith for all your needs When using an internet-connected lock, connect it to a wifi router before connecting it to your home device, as the two functions may use different IP addresses for communication.Q: Excel VBA passing default values to calculation method I have a 1st sheet that gets data from the 2nd sheet, which is basically a total of the money for all the days in the month, all the day numbers on a column for all the days and then adds up in the last column and then another column that looks up the final amount in the 2nd column based on the total in that row. What I'd like to know is if it's possible to make it so that when it performs the calculation for the 2nd column, it makes a default number that would look up the 3rd column and perform the calculation. A: You could try this. Assuming the 3rd column with the values you want is named 'C11' =If(B2="",A2,C11+A2) Alternatively, if the values are static, then another option would be to create a Formula only formula on the 3rd column cell like this =IF(B2="",A2,C11+A2) in which
