Q:  $n$  Proof - if  $n$  is an odd number, then  $n$  is divisible by 5 or an odd prime How do you prove this problem using induction? A: Base Case: For  $n=1$ , the statement is obviously true. Inductive Hypothesis: Assume the statement is true for all odd numbers  $k \leq n$ . Inductive Step: Now  $n$  is an odd number so by the inductive hypothesis we know that  $n$  is divisible by 5 or an odd prime. If  $n$  is divisible by 5, then  $n=5k$  for some integer  $k$ . If  $k$  is odd then by the inductive hypothesis, we know that  $k$  is also divisible by 5 or an odd prime. Since  $k$  and  $n$  are both odd, they are both divisible by 5. If  $n$  is an odd prime, then  $n=p$  for some prime  $p$ . If  $p$  is an odd prime, then by the inductive hypothesis, we know that  $p$  is divisible by 5 or an odd prime. Since  $p$  and  $n$  are both odd,  $p$  divides  $n$ . Even as the National Government dug in on its criticisms of Ms Ardern, a member of a public consultation group that advised on the royal commission into child abuse, now says it has second thoughts about part of its work. Partner and business consultant Cheryl Robinson told The AM Show it may now reconsider the part it prepared for the royal commission, which is used in parliamentary sessions, about the fate of the perpetrator of the 2016 Sky News sting. Ms Robinson said a member of the group, whose identity was agreed to before the end of the royal commission - which ran from 2016 to 2018 - had said it was "important" the sentencing was "clear" and "easy" to follow. "He said 'but that's a bit dangerous'." Ms Robinson said the member was expressing a thought that "it would be good if we could just make a law, throw all the judges out,
