Savita Bhabhi is a romantic and funny story about a young girl namedÂ . Tunneling isn't the only way to create a secure channel from your computer to the network. Firewalls and VPNs, for example, can also be used to secure communications on the internet. And that's important, as many hackers specialize in exploiting security holes in those services - and they often point out in transparent fashion exactly where holes can be exploited. Even though both backdoor and network penetration attacks have been reported using these applications, and both tend to be implicated in malware attacks (such as the Conficker worm), the risks are real and not completely theoretical: the NSA and other organizations can use them for spying, and advanced hackers in both the government and the criminal underworld are known to be employing them. Some VPN clients (including PIA and VyprVPN) say they monitor what you do online, even when they're not actively engaged in the connection. Other vendors - including the very well-respected and popular free client OpenVPN - also reveal your location. The fact that Google Maps and Google Earth can use the GPS signal to pinpoint a user's location is one indication of why it's important to be careful about what you're doing on the open internet.
