Umar Marvi (c. 1324–1382), also called Umar-e Marvī or simply Marvi, was a Persian poet of the Ilkhani [14th century] era. Marvi is famous for his love poetry in Persian, which takes the form of ghazals. Marvi is a distinguished figure in Persian literature with several outstanding achievements. He was a well known poet in Persian and is considered one of the most talented poets of Shahnameh. At least 2,000 ghazals by him are in manuscripts, and since his compositions in Persian are very rich in thought, it is said that he was one of the most perfect Persian poets. According to some accounts he had a military career, but this is not true.

Mohammad Tabrizi (born 15 June 1911 - died 25 September 1979) was a prominent Indian artist and painter of the Mughal and Rajput periods, now considered as one of the most famous and most respected artists of the Indian subcontinent. He is particularly known for his painting of mythical Indian figures, motifs and flora in a classical style. His subject matter was derived from a broad range of subjects, ranging from Hindu gods and goddesses, the Hindu epic Ramayana, epic poems such as the Mahabharata, popular and historical subjects, and miniatures on Islamic and Persian subjects. He was well known for being an excellent artist, but was unable to get credit as a painter, mostly due to his nationalities, his nationality being Persian. He was awarded the Padma Shri by the Government of India in 1976. He was awarded a gold medal from the Government of Rajasthan in 1970. Till date, 2,000 folios of his paintings have survived. He spent over a hundred days in a day and was known to paint in the night. By painting in stages of one day, he would paint the same image in all his paintings. He was the last of the 9 painters of the Mughal dynasty to paint on golden and marble plastered walls. In 1927 he trained and taught at the Government Central School of Art, Kolkata, India. He is considered to be a leader of the modern Indian art movement. Fakhr-e-Din Ali Akbar

(born 4 February 1930 – died 3 June 1998), better known by his stage name Akhtar, was an actor, singer and director in c6a93da74d
